Moving & beautifully written "coming-of-age" story

By BhamGhostwriter

Some people may think of this review as revealing "spoilers" though I promise it's all rather vague.

Javier is a 20 year old college student who thinks he is in love with Ana and is thereby seemingly happy with his young lot in life. But then he is fated to meet Ana's younger brother Jose and - partially because of a sexy blue Speedo bathing suit (which MAY well turn out to have some symbolic meaning toward the end of the book) - Javier's world turns around the other way and the two boys begin an obsessive - if somewhat lopsided - "love affair" with one another under the convincing guises of tutor and student. Resultant academic success for 17 year old Jose leads to a celebratory 4-day mountain hike that begins romantically but which is ultimately troublesome and achingly bittersweet for the two boys.

Their sad separation leads to severe mental problems for Javier and it is under those regrettable circumstances that the reader really begins to feel deeply for him; his slow improvement encourages that empathy. Then, delivered in a somewhat surprising and circuitous way by a friend of his former student, the blue Speedo bathing suit comes back to Javier from Jose and we're not really sure whether the sexy bathing suit is meant to be an apologetic "peace offering" or a "love token" of reconsideration. But no matter ... the gift along with its messenger serve a positive purpose and Javier appears to have found true love and contentment at last. A moving, beautifully written "coming of age" story.
